The Success of the Conference Exceeds All Expectations!

If you were unable to attend this year's California Network of Learning Professionals' Training Conference, be sure to mark your calendar for the next one. According to those in attendance, the workshops and networking opportunities were invaluable.

Total attendance almost exceeded maximum capacity, which provided an outstanding opportunity for networking with learning professionals from both the private and public sectors.

Surveys from those in attendance ranked the workshops the most valuable component of the conference. The Brochure from the conference highlighted a variety of topics geared towards learning professionals and addressed some of the "hot topics" of today's business world such as E-Learning and Workforce Succession Planning.

However, attendance was not limited to learning professionals; a few leaders from government agencies attended as well. In their opinion, the conference should be opened to leaders of private companies and state agencies because the workshops addressed not only current business trends but also talked of future business trends and their affect on the business market.

Booths were set up by some of the workshop presenters providing additional opportunities for networking with the local colleges and companies that are currently providing assistance to private and public agencies with the many facets of Workforce Succession Planning. The presenters were eager to make contact with all attendees at the conference but the overwhelming attendance and packed schedule left little time to do so. If you are interested in contacting any of the presenters and/or companies represented at the conference, please refer to the Presenter's (State Presenters, Private Presenters) list for contact information.

The CNLP logo was also unveiled...congratulations to Ree McLaughlan for submitting the winning entry. The Advisory Board was delighted with the submitted entries that spanned from the very conservative to the very artistic. Look for the CNLP logo on everything from the CNLP website to meeting notes and newsletters. Thank you to everyone who took the time and used their imagination to best represent the CNLP.

The conference owes much of its success to the cooperation of its participants, presenters, and vendors; however, the conference would not have even occurred without the CNLP Communications and Development Committee members. Please join us in acknowledging the diligent efforts of Kathy Jones, Chairperson, Zori Lozano-Friedrich, Lisa Reich, Nancy Bourne, David Galanti and Susan Coats.

These folks were responsible for taking on the monumental task of coordinating all aspects of a highly successful conference designed specifically to meet the interests and needs of the training community of California. What set this conference apart from the typical "Train the Trainer" camps or a day of training workshops is this conference truly addressed the current issues and business trends facing all businesses whether they are part of the public or private sectors. Many thanks to the members of the CNLP Communications and Development Committee!

In the words of Committee/Conference Chairperson, Kathy Jones...
